

How We Work Overview

A Metaprising Research Impact (M-RI) Accelerator

RIE firmly advocates for and believes that in order to find value you have to provide it first. We utilize partnering and collaboration as one key sustainable measure of success. Our organization is a lifestyle choice not just a business. So, RIE operates differently. We embrace different approaches and views, change, partner, evolve, and live to provide different types of initiatives and services that help individuals and a variety of organizations and organized units manage and maximize their impact.

As a M-RI Accelerator we look for and find potentially exceptional Research Impact and/or Academic Research Impact Value Propositions via: our services; our network; individual requests; and recommendations. We then see if we're a good fit with those who have these types of propositions.

Those individuals, organizations, and organized units are then mentored, coached, and supported in a variety of ways that allow them to first accelerate individual and organizational development and then net positive impact in terms of ROI, Social Return on Investment (SROI), and other Impact and Analysis Frameworks for the given or if need be the revised value proposition.

Once organizational development and Impact Value Propositions are vetted, we begin contacting individuals, investors, agencies, firms, and foundations in the impact space that we have developed or are developing relationships with to further advance your impact. We will also seek out firms, investors, individuals, incubators, accelerators, etc., outside of this space and sector when appropriate.
